

Anngwyn St. Just

Relative Balance in an Unstable World

A Search for New Models for Trauma Education and Recovery

Anngwyn St. Just

→ Relative Balance in an Unstable World

A Search for New Models for Trauma
Education and Recovery

174 pages, Paperback, 2006,

€ 22,95/USD 26,95

ISBN 3-89670-540-7

Available now!

“The time has come”, writes Anngwyn St. Just “to expand our understanding of trauma to include the kinds of overwhelm that extend beyond a traumatized individual. If we are to meet oncoming challenges of natural and man-made disasters, war, terrorism and other forms of violence, new paradigms are needed.” Dr. St. Just urges her readers to awaken to a realization that trauma is a global issue and to an urgent need to develop international, culturally appropriate, cost effective trauma education and recovery programs based upon easily transmitted concepts.

This book offers a compelling invitation to expand current concepts of trauma to include Nature, shamanic wisdom, cross cultural, non verbal, body oriented methods and an appreciation for the healing power of community.

“A rare combination of autobiography and scientific research at its best! I am now inspired to investigate connections, ideas, concepts and possibilities for individual healing and constructive social change that I would not otherwise have recognized.”

John Bilorusky, Ph.D., President
Western Institute for Social Research,
Berkeley, California

Anngwyn St. Just, Ph. D., is a social traumatologist, cultural historian, psychotherapist and somatic educator who holds advanced degrees from The Western Institute for Social Research and the University of California at Berkeley. As founder and director of the Arizona Center for Social Trauma she specializes in developing multimodal, cross cultural and body oriented methods based upon easily transmitted concepts for trauma education and recovery. Through ACST-Europa in Zurich/Switzerland (www.acst-europa.com), Dr. St. Just offers international seminars and training programs in social trauma with special focus on the issues of men, women and war.

Carl Auer International

Fax to:

+ 49-62 21-64 38 22

or send to:

Carl-Auer Verlag
Häusserstr. 14
69115 Heidelberg
Germany

www.carl-auer.com

Please deliver

Anngwyn St. Just
→ Relative Balance in an Unstable World

174 pages, Paperback, 2006

€ 22,95, USD 26,95

ISBN 3-89670-540-7

Price postage and handling additional

Name _____

Street _____

City/City Code _____

Country _____

E-Mail _____

Date/Signature

PLEASE WRITE CLEARLY IN CAPITAL LETTERS!